TRIBUTE TO HIS LONG SERVICES AT THE WESTCHESTER BAR DINNER.

A PORTRAIT OF THE EX-JUDGE TO HANG IN THE

WHITE PLAINS COURTHOUSE UNVEILED -CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW SPEAKS FOR

THE GUEST OF HONOR. Ex-Judge William H. Robertson was honored last night by his fellow-members of the Westchester bar. Besides being the principal guest at the second annual dinner of the Westchester Bar Association, which was held at the Murray Hill Hotel, recognition was made of his long and faithful pubrecognition was made of his long and an oil lie services in the State by the unveiling of an oil painting of him, which will hereafter hang in the White Plains Courthouse. An illustration of the picture appeared in The Tribune some days ago. During his career ex-Judge Robertson has occupluring alls carrier exchange Robertson has occupied many influential places. So long ago as 1866 he was elected as a Representative to the XLth Congress, and took an active part in the reconstruction legislation regarding the Southern States. In 1872 he began a term of service in the State Senate which continued without interruption for ten years. He was chairman of the committees on ten years. He was chairman of the committees on Commerce and Navigation, Rules, Literature and Judiciary. In 1881 his nomination by President Garfield for Collector of the Port of New-York was bitterly opposed by the Senators from New-York State—one of whom was Thomas C. Platt—who demanded the withdrawal of his nomination by the President. The contest resulted in the resignation of the Senators and the confirmation of experience of the Senators and the confirmation of the Senators and the confirmation of experience of the Senators and the confirmation of the Senators and t Judge Robertson as Collector soon afterward.

According to the assertions made by Chauncey M.

Depew last night at the dinner, ex-Judge Robertson

Depew last night at the diamer, ex-Judge Robertson was directly responsible for the nomination of Andrew Johnson for the Vice-Presidency in 1884 and of Garfield for the Presidency in 1880. The nomination of Johnson rested with the New-York delegation at the Baltimore Convention, and Judge Robertson, one of the delegates, Mr. Depew ex-Robertson, one of the delegates, Mr. Pepew ex-plained, carried through a campaign which ended in the selection of Johnson. And in the Chicago Con-vention of 1880, Mr. Depew contended, it was due entirely to Judge Robertson's repudiation of the unit rule and its defeat that led to the nomina-tion of Garfield.

Judge Robertson was present at last night's dinner, but it was apparent that he had not yet fully recovered from the severe iliness which afflicted him some time ago. He was unable to bear the strain of personally replying to the many kind things which his colleagues at the Westchester Bar said of him. Mr. Depew replied for him. Theodore H. Silkman, president of the association.

Theodore H Sikman, president of the association, had seated with him at the head table, in addition to ex-Judge Robertson and Mr. Depew, Bayard H. Tyler, Jesse Johnson, E. G. Whittaker, James Wood and Justices William W. Goodrich, Wilmot M. Smith, John Woodward, J. O. Dykman, Martin J. Reogh, Augustus Van Wyck, G. J. Garrettson and W. D. Dickey. The other tables were filled by nearly two hundred members of the Westchester Bar, and included many of the most prominent men in the county.

In the county.

The president, in beginning the after-dinner speaking referred first to the growth of the association. Though too young yet to dictate to the Legislature as to the laws it would be advisable to pass, or to suggest to the Judges of the courts new rules of procedure, yet the members looked forward with confident expectation to the near time in the future when the Westchester association would wield as much power as the New-York State and city associations. Then he drew the attention of the members to the fact that they were to pay honor to ex-Judge Robertson, who was the first president of the association.

The ceremony of unveiling the painting and of proposing the health of the guest of honor was assigned to James Wood, of Mount Kisco. At some length he recounted the many offices of public trust which ex-Judge Robertson had filled, and said that his public career had been without parallel.

Organization Society, No. 165 East Twenty-second-He cited several instances wherein efforts had been made to buy Mr. Robertson's influence by people interested in various bills by offering him next smoker in the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Parlor people interested in various bills by offering him large retaining fees as legal adviser during his chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee, but which Judge Robertson without hesitation refused.

Chauncy M. Depew, in responding for ex-Judge Robertson, made an exceedingly forceful and attractive speech. At the outset he spoke in a humorous way of the characteristics of the West-chester courts and bar, and of his own experiences in the county when as a young man he began the practice of law. Since that period he had been closely associated with Judge Robertson, and in detail he recounted to the extreme interest of his hearers the important part which the ex-Judge had taken, not only in the history of New-York State, but that of the Nation.

Correction, to be neld in this city from May 18 to 25, is commanding unusual attention on the part number of delegates aiready reported from different sections of the country. Connecticut, Kentucky, sent in the names of their State delegates.

The mayors of Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Milwaukee, Springfield, Mo., Rock Island, El., Coun-cil Bluffs, Baltimore, Pittsburg and of many other representatives have been reported by charitable bers of the Conference, a large proportion of whom usually attend its annual meeting.

New-York State reported 169 members of the Conference last year. Since the local Committee of One Hundred began its work a few weeks ago 200 members from this State alone have been added to the Conference, and every day brings new accessions. The membership in the country at large has more than trebled since 183.

More than $5,000 has been subscribed to the local expenses of the Conference, without a general appeal to the public, the local committee having given the larger part of this sum. The committee wants $19,000 to enable it to carry out its plans in a manner worthy of the city and the National character of the Conference. The organization had its origin in this city in 1874, and now returns to celebrate its quarter centennial.

William Rhinelander Stewart, president of the New-York State Board of Charities, is the president of the Conference. Isalah Josephi, of New-York, is one of the vice-presidents. The officers of the local committee are Joseph H. Choate, chairman, Judge Joseph F. Daly, vice-chairman, and Jacob H. Schiff, treasurer. Subscriptions for local expenses of the Conference may be sent to Mr. Schiff, at No. 27 Pine-81.

Applications for membership in the Conference or for general information should be made at the office of the local committee, Room No. 215, United Charities Building, Fourth-ave, and Twenty-second-82.
